

Global wins Aviation Security Contract for Atlas Air

Houston - May 31, 2010 — Beginning today, Atlas Air has engaged Global Elite Group to provide security services for its flights at George Bush Intercontinental Airport (IAH) in Houston.

Atlas Air was selected to operate an outsourced premium passenger private charter service for the U.S.-Africa Energy Association (USAEA). The Agreement to operate the charter was reached with SonAir -- Serviço Aéreo, S.A. (SonAir), acting as agent for the USAEA.

Atlas will operate the charter service with two newly customized Boeing 747-400 aircraft provided by SonAir's parent company, which were reconfigured into a business and executive class configuration. The charter service, which has become known as the "Houston Express", includes three dedicated weekly non-stop flights between Houston and Luanda, Angola. While it is not open to the public, it provides USAEA members with a premium non-stop transportation link to support complex long-term projects in the West African energy sector

Global will work closely with Atlas Air's Aviation Security Department and the IAH Airport Management team to provide specialist functions including:

- Aircraft Security
- Ramp Security
- Catering Security
- Baggage Security

Working with its aviation clients, Global has been recognized for its unique approach to providing custom security solutions. Global provides customer oriented professional services and ensures that effective security and regulatory compliance is delivered.
